Melanie Watt's Scaredy Squirrel is one in a series of 5 books about a fearful squirrel. In this story, Scaredy Squirrel is afraid to leave the tree due to a number of possible hazards, including spiders, germs, and bees. There's a bit of panic when one of his biggest fears is realised but all ends positively for Scaredy Squirrel as he gains confidence and strategies in taking risks enabling him to explore the world.

The book encourages families to normalise and talk about fear and worries. What is something you're afraid of? Have you ever decided to face your fear? If so, what happened? If not, what do you think would help you face one of your fears?
